Set the handicap first

Do this before the first question, not after someone runs away with it

EASY QUESTION WORTH

..... points
Start at 1

HARD QUESTION WORTH

..... points
Start at 2

HOUSE RULE FOR TONIGHT

Try: the know-it-all takes hard questions only

STEAL ALLOWED?

Who gets a miss, and for how many points

Who is at the table

Tick a tier before the first question. That tier is the whole point.

1 PLAYER

☐ Knows all ☐ Holds own ☐ Here to snack

2 PLAYER

☐ Knows all ☐ Holds own ☐ Here to snack

3 PLAYER

☐ Knows all ☐ Holds own ☐ Here to snack

4 PLAYER

☐ Knows all ☐ Holds own ☐ Here to snack

Round by round

Tick E or H for the question, then write what each player scored

ROUND	E / H	PLAYER 1	PLAYER 2	PLAYER 3	PLAYER 4
1	☐ E ☐ H
2	☐ E ☐ H
3	☐ E ☐ H
4	☐ E ☐ H
5	☐ E ☐ H
6	☐ E ☐ H
7	☐ E ☐ H
8	☐ E ☐ H
9	☐ E ☐ H
10	☐ E ☐ H
Total

WINNER AFTER THE HANDICAP

Final score: _____

The one nobody got

Answer we argued about

Best confident wrong answer

Handicap worked? Change it to

How to use this: set the two point values before you start, tick a tier for every player, then mark each question E or H as you draw it. A hard question is worth more, so the person who knows everything has to earn it while everyone else stays in the game. Last line is the important one. Write down what to change and the next night is fairer than this one.
